

The Start and now the end

Many of you from the very early days will remember this building.

For an awful lot of you this was the first place you were taken on arrival in Moscow to sort out your programme. The leader was Vladimir Nesevry and whenever David Bull and David McKee were visiting Moscow he was always at the airport to meet them.

The photograph above shows Chris Woolley from Ivor Heath visiting in 1993

To the right is a leader teaching some of the scouts computer work on equipment sent from England. This was also the site where a small printing press was set up to enable the printing of many documents and training manuals.

Again unfortunately although in the early days some sponsorship was had from a local aerospace company this dried up. Mike Stanley has been a major supporter of this Group.

This Group is from Khimky, Moscow region

The headqartes has been taken back by the local council for administrative purposes